

POSTCARDS

Postcards exist somewhere between photograph and painting- they are composite images of specific places and idealized images. They are translation of reality, presenting a constructed image that can vary from the actual place. The website invites visitors to consider the ways in which postcards shape our perceptions of place an time and the role they play in our personal and collective memories.

The website invites visitors to consider the ways in which postcards shape our perceptions of place and time and the role they play in our personal and collective memories.

COLOR CHART

CURT TEICH & COMPANY, CHICAGO

THIS APPLIES FOR PHOTO-COLORIT AND ART-COLORTONE PROCESSES ONLY

DESIGNATE COLORS DESIRED BY NUMBERS

